Fund Objectives

The fund showcases a hybrid strategy; encompassing both index-related holdings and hand-picked stocks, thereby capturing both overall market movements and taking the opportunity to exploit market volatility to the fund's advantage. This top-down, bottom-up strategy aims to attain high capital growth through worldwide equity acquisition and ultimately out-perform the MSCI World Index.

Fund Manager Comment

Markets remained resilient in May as investors continued to price in geopolitical de-escalation between the US and Iran. This was reflected in energy markets, where Brent crude oil reached a high of $114 before retreating to approximately $92. Sentiment towards Artificial Intelligence-related investments also remained strong, supported by a robust first-quarter earnings season and continued growth across the sector. First-quarter earnings growth in Asia exceeded that of the United States, with earnings increasing approximately 40% compared to 30% in the US. Performance across Asian markets has been driven largely by Korea and Taiwan, where companies such as Samsung Electronics and SK Hynix continue to benefit from strong demand within the memory semiconductor market. While the fund maintains exposure to the AI theme, we continue to identify attractive opportunities in businesses that the market has categorised as AI losers, including Salesforce and Tencent. Both companies currently trade at valuations below their long-term averages despite underlying fundamentals remaining resilient. We believe that, as management teams continue to execute the gap between market perception and intrinsic value should narrow over time.

General risks

The portfolio may change significantly over a short period of time. This is not a buy or sell recommendation for any particular security. Figures may not always sum to 100 due to rounding. The value of these investments, and any income generated from them, will be affected by changes in interest rates, general market conditions and other political, social and economic developments, as well as by specific matters relating to the assets in which they invest. Past performance should not be taken as a guide to the future. The Funds' objectives will not necessarily be achieved and there is no guarantee that these investments will make profits; losses may be made. Collective investment schemes are generally medium to long-term investments. A schedule of fees and charges and maximum commissions is available from the manager. The value of the investment may go down as well as up. The Fund is traded at ruling prices and can engage in borrowing and scrip lending. The Manager does not provide any guarantee either with respect to the capital or the return of the portfolio

Additional risks include potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds, macroeconomic risks, settlement risks and potential limitations on the availability of market information.
